About Us

As the Undergraduate Anthropology Club of Michigan State University, we seek to expose prospective anthropologists to a wealth of anthropological topics and the breadth of all areas of focus. We strive to introduce students to resources and networking that will help them to further their professional and personal goals. We serve as a means to connect Michigan State University's body of future anthropologists to broader regional, national, and international communities. In addition, we work to bring an awareness of anthropology to the Michigan State University student body and encourage stewardship within the community.
