The field school is a unique learning experience where students are engaged in research, involving the collection, recording, and analysis of archaeological data. Because of the nature of excavation and data collection, student participation is mandatory and your daily attendance is required. We are in the field, lab, or doing some other activity 5 to 6 days a week.

Are you currently a student at MSU? (Y/N) _____. If enrolled, what year are you currently?

Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, Senior (circle one). What is your major (and minor if applicable)

- List the anthropology, archaeology and/or related courses that you have completed and/or are enrolled in:

- Other experience/concerns pertinent to field school admission:

- Please provide a brief statement on the back of this form or attached to this form explaining your interest in the field school.

What happens now?

Applications will be evaluated and students will be invited to meet with the instructor and teaching assistants to discuss participation and questions the applicant might have. Upon receipt of an acceptance notification, students will register with MSU and send their non-refundable $750 course fee to the Department of Anthropology to secure their place in the field school.

Mail this completed form and an unofficial copy of transcripts to: Dr. Jodie O’Gorman, Dept. of Anthropology, 355 Baker Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824
